

2021

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON COMMENCEMENT

Lundquist College of Business

Welcome to the 2021 Charles H. Lundquist College of Business commencement ceremony. It's not how any of us imagined it, but that doesn't mean it is any less significant for us and you—our innovative, determined, and resilient Class of 2021. On behalf of our faculty and staff, we are so honored to get to celebrate with you, even if we are not in the same room.

The hard work, resolve, and dedication you have shown over the past year, as well as throughout your college career, will serve you for the rest of your life. You have persevered in the face of global uncertainty, and I urge you to harness this spirit to go forth and build the world you want to see. Because it's yours now. Own it. Care for it. Make it better. It's what Ducks do.

Today's achievement marks the start of the rest of your life. As you journey forward please keep in touch. We are so proud of this amazing class and look forward to seeing where each of your future paths take you.

Congratulations Lundquist College of Business Class of 2021!

NOTES ON ACADEMIC DRESS

Today's academic regalia have their origins in the caps and gowns worn in medieval universities more than 800 years ago. Unlike bachelor's and master's gowns, doctoral robes have velvet facings and three velvet bars across the sleeves in black or the color specific to the degree subject (for example, business administration and accountancy: drab; engineering: orange; statistics: light rose). Some of these colors are probably arbitrary, whereas others carry symbolic or historic significance. Thus, green, the color of medicinal herbs and all things living, signifies medicine. Blue, the color of heaven, stands for wisdom and truth (that is, philosophy). Law is represented by the royal purple of the crown. By colors and size, hoods identify the subject field and degree level, as well as the institution conferring the degree. The hood started out as a head covering, but it also has served as a shoulder cape and a bag for alms and "tuition payments" in kind and in coin.

CHARLES H. LUNDQUIST COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

The Lundquist College of Business empowers an engaged community of students, faculty, staff, and stakeholders who create, apply, and disseminate business knowledge in order to make significant contributions to their professions, communities, and society.

An integral part of the University of Oregon's position as an elite research institution, the college boasts a world-class faculty that delivers a distinctive education combining an integrated understanding of business's role in society with hands-on experiences.

- Founded in 1993, the Warsaw Sports Marketing Center is the first sports industry program in the nation to be housed at a college of business.
- The Oregon MBA is a top 3 program for sustainable business, according to The Princeton Review's annual Green MBA rankings for 2021.
- The Lillis Business Complex was the first certified environmentally friendly business school facility in the nation.
- The college's finance curriculum is certified by the prestigious Chartered Financial Analyst Institute's University Recognition Program, making it one of only 150 programs worldwide on this exclusive list.
- U.S. News & World Report's Best Business Schools 2021 placed the college's undergraduate business program 28th in the nation among public business schools and 44th overall out of more than 511 programs ranked.
- The Lundquist College of Business was first accredited in 1923, and its accounting program was accredited in 1989. Only 1.2 percent of the world's business schools are accredited in both business and accounting by AACSB International.
- In 2020, the college's Department of Management placed #10 for research productivity on a per capita basis in rankings released by Texas A&M University and the University of Georgia.
- UO faculty ranked second worldwide in publishing tax accounting research, according to a 2021 Brigham Young University study.

The Lundquist College of Business class of 2021 includes 724 graduates from 17 countries and 32 states, 90 international students, and 378 Oregonians. Among the graduates, 372 earned a minor in a field outside of business, and 24 earned a certificate in global business.
