School of Planning, Public Policy and Management

The School of Planning, Public Policy and Management (PPPM) attracts students from around the world who are interested in the ways governments, nonprofit organizations, and private-sector organizations address some of the most important problems facing society today.

Our curriculum emphasizes experiential learning, evidence-based decision making, and interdisciplinary study. The faculty members are internationally recognized scholars with a wide range of training and research interests. Our home in Oregon and the Pacific Northwest builds on the region's international reputation for livability, pioneering planning, and innovative policy.

The school is located in historic Hendricks Hall in the center of the University of Oregon campus in Eugene. PPPM is a strong and active community, where faculty members and students work together with professionals and community members to research, learn, and take on important leadership roles.

We are dedicated to giving our students the power to positively affect not just their own futures but also the people, communities, and environments around them. Our dedication to principles of civic responsibility, environmental sustainability, international understanding, and cross-disciplinary education goes back to the very founding of the school. Our goal is to provide our students with the skills and mentorship they need to take on active roles with communities and to work on complex global challenges.
